ROWING AUTHORITIES

REACH NO AGREEMENT fale-Harvard Unable to Decide Whether to Have Second Varsity Eights or Four Oared Varsity Race.

With all other arrangements com-pleted, the rowing authorities at Harpleted, the rowing authorities at Harvard and Yale have not yet arrived at any conclusion as to whether one of the three races on the big day of the regutta on the Thames shall be a contest between second varsity eights, as was the case last year, when the Harvard crew won and subsequently went to Henley and won the Grand Challenge cup, or whether there shall be a return to varsity four-oared crews, as had been the custom for some years previous to 1914. ome years previous to 1914. It was stated at Harvard that Har-vard was in favor of a return to the varsity four-oared race, in the belief that there was more honor coming to the oarsmen rowing in a varsity four, in which they are assured of their initials, than in a second varsity eight, for which initials are not awarded as a general thing. Yale, however, favors the second varsity eight idea. And there the matter stands at the present time. lime.

Whichever race is decided upon, it will be rowed downstream in the morning of June 25, from Red Top to the navy yard, about 10.15 o'clock, to be followed by the usual race for freshman eights from the navy yard to the bridge. The big varsity race will be rowed upstream, presumably about 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The course last year was also up-stream

The course last year was also up-stream.

On the day before the varsity race will come the usual freshman four-oared race, either a scrub four-oared or a scrub eight-oared race, to be made up of freshman and varsity substitutes. Whether the usual graduates' eight race, which has been a sporting event for so many years, will be un-dertaken again next June has not been decided. It has frequently been difficult to get enough alumni oarsmen together to man the eights, and for that reason it may be abandoned.

EDWARD HANLON QIUTS FEDERAL LEAGUE

Baltimore Stockholder Has Sold Out Fearing the League Would Go on

After helping to organize the Baltimore Federal League club, which forced Jack Dunn and the International league to abandon that city, Edward Hanlon has disposed of his stock, together with that of a prominent hotel man and no longer is identified with the business affairs of the Terrapins. It is true that Hanlon, who leased a ball park to the Feds in Baltimore, remains the landlord, but in playing that role he is running no great risk. Hanlon formerly collected rent from Jack Dunn, but the transfer of the Orioles to Richmond last season was followed but the transfer of the Orioles to Richmond last season was followed by the cutting up of the old park into building lots. Hanlon has not attended a Federal league meeting for some time, which is believed to be due to a sudden lack of interest in the affairs of the Glimore circuit.

When Hanlon, who is a baseball man of wide experience, consented to invest money in the Terrapins a year ago it was ascertained by enemies that he would not subscribe more than ago it was ascertained by enemies that he would not subscribe more than $20,000 and that his real purpose was the leasing of his property directly opposite the park for which Dunn had been paying rent to Hanlon for several years. At first Hanlon was enthusiastic over the Federal league's prospects. He marched at the head of a brass band with Gilmore and the Wards when Washington park, the

Feds could not succeed as a "third major league."

According to the story now in circulation, Hanlon became disgusted with the way the Federal league was handled and at the end of last season he decided to sell his stock in the Baltimore ciub. He succeeded in getting rid of every share and then he quietly disposed of a block of stock owned by a well known hotel proprietor. Persons who are close to the situation in Baltimore say that Hanlon sold out fearing that the Federal league as a whole would go on the rocks. In view of the financial troubles of the Feds in Kansas City and Indianapolis Hanlon evidently saw the handwriting on the wall.
